KAISER AGAIN IN LIMELIGHT

Arranges a Conference With Czar of National Capital Seems to Be Perme-

ALL EUROPE GUESSING AT THE SAD DILEMMA OF THE TURKISH OUTCOME.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 23.—(Midnight.)—On the night.)-On the eve of the peace night.)—On the eve of the peace conference, and with a suddenness already disconcerting to diplomatic and court circles, the emperor left Peterhof today on board the imperial yacht Polar Star for a conference with Emperor William, who is cruising on the Hohenzollern in Finnish waters.

The first interview of the sovereigns was expected to take place this evening off the Finnish port of Borgo at the off the Finnish port of Borgo, at the mouth of the Gulf of Finland, near Helsingfors. This will be followed by another interview tomorrow, after which Emperor Nicholas will return to St. Petersburg and Emperor William will continue his cruise.

Grand Duke With the Czar.

The emperor is accompanied by his brother, Grand Duke Michael Alexan-drovitch, and a considerable with hrother, Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch, and a considerable suite, including Count Benckendorff, marshal of the court: General Baron W. Fredericks, minister of the imperial house: Count Heyden, chief of the imperial chancellory; Admiral Biriloff, minister of marine: Captain von Eessen, who commanded the battleship Sevastopol during the siege of Port Arthur; Captain Chagin, who commanded the Almaz, the only cruiser of Admiral Rojestvensky's fleet to reach Vladivostok after the battle of the Sea of Japan; Captain Hintze, naval attache of the German embassy; also a party of courtiers and the emperor's escort of sailors and marines, with a guard commanded by Admiral Neelof.

No Diplomats Present.

No Diplomats Present.

Astute Kaiser William.

Emperor William's action was instantly connected with the Moroccan question, and admiration for his political astuteness in realizing his opportunities was expressed on all sides.

Like the last meeting between Emperor Nicholas and Emperor William at a hunting seat in Russian Poland, where the European and eastern situations were discussed between the strokes of a game of billiards and Russia was assured that she need have no anxiety regarding her western frontier while engaged with the Japanese, the conferences in the cabins of the Hohenzollern and the Polar Star will be entirely informal and probably without secretaries or other witnesses, unless perhaps Grand Duke Michael Alexan. perhaps Grand Duke Michael Alexan-drovitch should be a participant.

Support For the Czar.

There is no set programme of sub-jects for discussion, aside from a genappointed temporarily, but for the local feets for discussion, aside from a general consideration of the factors in the present situation affecting the two empires, but it can be stated that the compires, but it can be stated that the compires, but it can be stated that the compires and he scorns that the means to remain it full of bitterness and he scorns that consolation prize of going to the service of the scorns of lipotentiaries will occupy a place in

MUCH SPECULATION.

London Newspapers Discuss the Meeting of Monarchs.

London, July 24.—The London newspapers this morning note with inquietude the sudden resolve of Emperor Nichotas to visit Emperor William, and all kinds of speculations are indulged in as to the possible motives for and the results of such a momentous interview at a time when so many difficult problems are facing European diplomacy. The Moroccan and Scandingarian questions are regarded seeking and the resuit is awaited with the greatest anxiety.

A curious story is published in Brussels in connection with King Leopold's appeal recently to the Belgian chamber to pass the bill providing for the fortification of Antwerp. W ASHINGTON, July 23.—"Scandal, scandal, everywhen. scandal, everywhere, and hardly time to think," might be the par aphrase of Coleridge's famous lines, if one may judge by the way things are going at present. It must not be sup-posed that the administration is to blame just because it unearths condiblame just because it unearths conditions that-were allowed to grow up under previous ones. The pendulum swings from postoffice to land office, and then takes in a few senators, to turn again to the state department where Mr. Loomis is whitewashed with the admonition that he is all right, but mustn't go it again; then the department of agriculture got its innings in connection with the cotton leaks; the Panama canal gets its share; and the government printing office struggles into line with the controversy over the Langston and Mergenthaler typesetting machines, with the final reover the Langston and Mergenthaler typesetting machines, with the final result that the hand-set advocates play both sides against each other with much glee and no little setisfaction. There is the word from the president that the cotton leak must be stopped and its perpetrators punished; but some of the force is taken from his strong assertions to repet to the deaths. strong assertions to probe to the depths when the leniency that followed the Santa Fe rebate cases and the Vene-zuelan asphalt affairs is taken into consideration

Loomis Must Be Dropped.

Now that Mr. Loomis has done his No Diplomats Present.

It is noticeable that there is no representative of the Russian foreign office among the emperor's entourage, nor is the German ambassador. Count Alvensleben, on board the Polar Star. This gives color to the report that the meeting was arranged between the two emperors directly, without recourse to the usual diplomatic channels. Emperor William suggested the rendezvous by telegram from Hernossand, Sweden. The idea, the report says, met with the emperor's favor, but the final arrangements were only completed yesterday when some members of the imperial family were hastily commanded last night to accompany his majesty.

Many diplomatists were taken completely by surprise by the news of today, the rumors that a meeting was contemplated, which were current since Friday, having met with the flattest denials in official quarters, and the German ambassador having stated that he will be genteelly allowed to slide out of the public gaze, though that he will be genteelly allowed to slide out of the public gaze, though that he will be genteelly allowed to slide out of the public gaze, though that he will be genteelly allowed to slide out of the public gaze, though that he will be genteelly allowed to slide out of the public gaze, though that he will be genteelly allowed to slide out of the public gaze, though that he will be genteelly allowed to slide out of the public gaze, though that he will be genteelly allowed to slide out of the public gaze, though that he will be genteelly allowed to slide out of the public gaze, though that he will be genteelly allowed to slide out of the public gaze, though that he will be genteelly allowed to slide out of the public gaze, though that he will be genteelly allowed to slide out of the public gaze, though that he will be genteelly allowed to slide out of the public gaze, though that he will be genteelly allowed to slide out of the public gaze, though that he will be genteelly allowed to slide out of the public gaze, though that he will be genteelly allowed to s hefty share in passing the remains of John Paul Jones out of the hands of

FLOWERS AND FLAGS IN GREAT PROFUSION.

CAN DIEGO, Cal., July 23.—They buried the Bennington's dead today-forty-seven of them-in a on grave. On the crest of the Promontory of Loma, high above the shimmering waters of San Diego bay, on the one side, and within sound of the booming surf of the Pacific on the peaceful little military burying ground Without the crash of drum or the brass, without pomp or parother, they were laid to rest in the ade, yet with simple impressiveness all honor was paid the nation's dead.

They have honored dead to keep them company, these brave boys of the Bennington. All about them lie those who died in the nation's service in more trying times. Gravestones, yellow with age, bear the names of men who died at Monterey, in the Mexican war; others who gave up their life in the conquest of California and who followed Commodore Stockton at old San Pasqual. These are their neighbors in death. Surely they should rest well.

Tribute of Army and Navy.

Army and navy paid their last trib Army and navy paid their last tributes no less sincere than the simple grief of the representatives of peace, who made the long journey around or across the great bay. From Fort Rosecrans came the 115th company, coast heavy artillery, from the city of San Diego the naval reserves; from the Universal Brotherhood's home on Point Loma, a company of khaki-clad representatives, and from the government Loma, a company of khaki-clad representatives, and from the government ship Fortune a dozen of her sailors. But the most impressive body of mourners were the fifty-two men from the battered Bennington. Besides these there were hundreds of civilians, who, unthoughtful of the fatiguing journey from the city, brought their offerings of flowers to lay upon the graves. San Diego was a city of mourning today. Although the people of this little city have taken in the Bennington eatastrophe an interest that was personal to all from the moment it haponal to all from the moment it hap-

The term of bands of music to stirt the people with doleful melody—everything was quiet and businesslike. The task was too big to be hampered by any of the usages of ordinary funerals. Forty-seven men were to be buried and to bury them it was necessary to haul them ten miles up steep hills and along dusty roads. And so there were only flowers and flags. But there were only flowers and flags. But there was a striking display of these. Every casket bore a beautifully executed wreath of asparagus ferns, white carnations and immortelles, thoughtfully the last nine holes yesterday showed that he meant to play the meant of asparagus ferns, white carnations and immortelles, thoughtfully nations and immortelles, thoughtfully sent by the San Diego commercial

Flag For Every Casket.

The flags came from the nation in whose services the dead had very one of the plain black stained askets was draped with the national mblem, and the plain commercial util ity of the dead wagons was disguised under the folds of the national colors. From noon until 3 o'clock these dead burdened wagons toiled toward the burial grounds and not until almost half past four was the last casket placed in the rocked ribbed trench. Hundreds of other vehicles stirred the choking dust of the ten mile road throughout the forenoon, all making for the same point, while every craft that could be had, brought hundreds across the five mile stretch of bay, who, unmindful of the precipitous heights to be scaled, climbed five hundred feet to the crest of the ridge. In this way the soldiers from Fort Rosecrans came toiling up the steep foot path, their striking full dress uniforms giving col-or to the dull grey hills. After them ame the naval reserves and still later the survivors of the Bennington.

Cantain F. J. Drake. Commander Lucien Young of the Bennington, and the members of his staff; Captain E. D. ### Placed in the Grave.

Without a moment's delay the work of lifting the coffins from the wagons and ranging then in the trench was carried on. Shipmates from the Bennington performed this sad duty. Squads of six came forward from their sanks in marile encession lifting the ranks in rapid succession, lifting the caskets gently, entered the trench at the head and deposited the bodies as directed by Lieutenant Tobin, who checked them and saw that the board laced at the head of each was properly narked and numbered. In just one our and fifteen minutes, the last body had been deposited in the trench.

******* F vou heard a deep, gentle murmun as of a babbling brook or rustling winds in the pines or any other othing sound, yesterday afternoon late, it was probably an echo of the sigh of relief that went up from the Country club when the members dis-covered their team had walloped the Butte visitors in unholy fashion on the first half of the golf match for the first half of the golf match for the Leyson cup.

The night before a cave of gloom would have been cheerful compared with the Salt Lake team's emotions. They had seen the men from the north play rings all 'round the best of the local players and it was ten dollars to a cancelled postage stamp that the Leyson cup would stay in Silver Bow county, state of Montana, S. S.

When the first half of eighteen holes was finished yesterday afternoon, the bulletin board showed that every Butte man had lost, and in every case the bulletin board showed that every Butte man had lost, and in every case the margin of safety for Salt Lake was comfortable. The handicap against the visitors will be hard to overcome on the final round today even by brilliant play throughout, and the prospects for a Salt Lake victory are good, though reversals of form are not uncommon in the Scotch game and a Butte victory is still possible, though not probable.

Watch Copp and Richards.

Several of the matches furnished surprises almost as startling as the general result. Copp was expected to hold Richards to a close score, but no one supposed for a moment that he one supposed for a moment that he could come in on the first nine holes with four to the good. On the second nine, Richards took a brace, but Copp played another forty round and made his day's work four up with the exceedingly good score of 80, medal play. Copp's style of play may be gathered from the fact that he had eight fours. six fives, two threes, and two sixes in the eighteen holes—a remarkably conthe eighteen holes—a remarkably con-sistent series, though, curiously enough, his sixes were on the last hole

Harkness Surprises Them.

The best medal score of the day was made by Harkness, who had been un-derrated by Butte, though the local derrated by Butte, though the local team counted on him to put a kink in Arthur. Harkness played a 40-39, heating bogey by one up on the eighteen. His play was remarkably even. When a man can play over as sporty a course as the local links and wind up with twelve fours, five fives and one six to his credit, he needn't be afraid of any ordinary amateur; and the funny thing about it is the fact that the Butte team about it is the last that the Bute team rated Harkness as fifth man on the Salt Lake line. Arthur, his opponent, is a game player with a Scotch burr delightful to hear, and he bobbed up after the match apparently undismayed and betting boxes of caudy with the pretty girls at the club that he'd close the match with one up to his credit.

Case of McGurrin vs. Hodgens.

Another upset came in the Hodgens-McGurrin match. McGurrin started off pretty well for a sick man, though it was evident his knees were a little wobbly and he wasn't as steady on his putting as he usually is. Going up to the second hole, he tangled himself up for seven and the gallery thought Hodgens had him going. Right about there "Mac" set his teeth and came down the stretch with fours and fives and a three until he hit the last hole with a six; on the second round he was still carrying a full head of steam and when he holed out in four at the last green, 38 for the round of nine and 90 cm. 38 holed out in four at the last green, 38 for the round of nine and 80 for eighteen, he had his man pretty well snowed under in spite of the hot weather. Unss something extraordinary happens. McGurrin has his match won right now in spite of the Butte captain's good nerve and eye.

The Thompson-Green match was not as much of a surprise as some of the others, though it was supposed Green would hold the Salt Laker to a closer score than the cards show. Thompso son's includes one estimate on a pic up at the sixth where he got into the gully at the edge of the canyon. It seems a foregone conclusion that Thompson has his man safe, even allowing for the brace Green is likely to take on the second day's play.

Wicks Makes Strong Finish.

Palmer started out with indications him a lead of three. At the sixth hole, ver, Wicks came to himself from there on was never in danger. His play on the second round showed Wicks in steady form that promised well for today.

In the Holbrook-Holman match, the In the Holorook-Hollan match, and Butte player made the first round with two up at the ninth, but Holman started off with bogey in the first hole of the eecond round and kept grinding away in good shape, closing the eighteen holes three up. Even with this markin Hollang is not entirely safe on the gin Holman is not entirely safe match, for Holbrook may profit by the match, in Holosa had been sained westerday's play, and pull up to close enough to be dangerous.

Salt Lake Ought to Win.

As the first day's round stands, Salt Lake ought to win thus. Thompson ought to get Green; Harkness has a
